

https://www.lakeexpo.com/news/lake_news/farewell-climax-springs-voters-dissolve-100-year-old-village/article_9e196496-3ba8-11e5-b126-a71cf3f7881d.html

FEATURED

Farewell Climax Springs! Voters Dissolve 100-Year-Old Village

by Nathan Bechtold

Aug 5, 2015

CAMDEN COUNTY, Mo. — Thirty-four voters came to the polls on Aug. 4 to decide the fate of Climax Springs.

The vote was 28-6, in favor of dissolving the village, which was founded in the 1880s.

What's left of the city now belongs to Camden County—the county will be responsible for maintaining infrastructure, and it will assume all assets and liabilities that were once the city's, according to Commissioner Cliff Lubber.

Climax Springs Could Vote Itself Out Of Existence After 100 Years

Camden County voters also soundly rejected a levy increase for the Southwest Camden Fire Protection District, as well as a levy increase for Osage Beach Fire.

Stoutland R-2 School District residents said No to a operating levy increase for the district.

Small Fire District In Camden County Eyes Levy Increase Amid Thin Operating Margins

Fires In Climax Springs Destroy Mobile Home, Damage Resort